Is there a location I can place custom code for themes? I basically just want to add some functions (function name = /function), but where? A: Since you don't specify any details (in your comments) about your installation, here's a general answer: Typically, you put custom WordPress functions into a file called functions.php, located in the wp-content folder. For an example of a simple functions.php file, see this article. You can refer to the Codex for more specific instructions, like this one, depending on what you're trying to accomplish. Lastly, you can put custom functions in a custom plugin, but not all plugins can be uploaded to your host, so you may need to either place your functions directly into a theme, or write a plugin. Hair plugs Hair plugs usually have varied levels of thickness. On top and sometimes near the forehead, they can be fairly intense, which makes them suitable for darker or more brassy tones. Thickness decreases the further down you go. As we've said before, we don't think this is an essential hairdo, but it's certainly an interesting addition to your hair. Thin hair plugs f678ea9f9e
